"We kind of joined Farm & Food Care (FFCO) by "accident", but it was an accident of the best kind! As a trade association of mutual farm insurers we were looking for a speaker on current issues facing our policyholders on the farm. That led us to FFCO and we discovered the important work that was going on in promoting many things that Canadians can take for granted: food security, the agriculture sector's huge contribution to the economy, environmental farm issues, social license.....the list goes on.

A FFCO event or meeting brings together the whole spectrum of farm and agricultural groups. Both challenges and solutions are shared, and it's the transparency in sharing that information that's so unique in the farm sector. FFCO plays a vital role in a broad-based approach to public education on where our food comes from and we believe it's important to support and be a part of that story."
